(Exhibit 8)
- 7. Opposer claims that Nautica is uniquely the source of high quality merchandise and expensive brand. In Nautica's Opposition it is claimed that they are engage in the sale of high quality apparel and that their products are famous. (See Opposition at Paragraphs 7 and 10, Exhibit 9.)
- 8. Nautica Apparel, Inc. does not conduct business in Puerto Rico and is not authorized to conduct business in Puerto Rico. Its trademarks are not registered in Puerto Rico. Nautica has two (2) specialized store outlets in Puerto Rico where they

- 11. The Sailor design trademark resembles a SAILBOAT of the schooner type, the Christopher Columbus type of boats which sales are a gaff rig and sails are not triangles. (See Exhibit 12, Schooner type and Sloop Type.)

- 13. Nautica's opposition is speculative and has not produced any document that shows any incident of confusion and their opposition is based on pure speculation. Applicant served an Interrogatory to Opposer and requested to provide the documents in which the Opposer based its averment that their goods are similar to Opposer's goods and services or confusingly similar. Opposer failed to produce any document to sustain their allegations:

- "8. Identify and produce all documents that gives you base to plead that Applicant's goods are similar or substantially similar to Opposer's goods and servides and provide all documentation that gives base to said premises.
- 9. Identify and produce all documents that show that Applicant intend to distribute and/or to provide Applicants goods and services to the same channels of trade as Opposer.
- 10. Identify and produce all documents that show that Opposer marks and Applicants mark are confusingly similar when applied to the goods of the parties."

Opposer's Answer:

"Opposer Nautica Apparel, Inc., objects to Applicant's First Set of Interrogatories on the basis that the same violates 37 CFT Section 2.120(d) as the actual number of interrogatories with subparts exceeds the 75 interrogatory limit. See Kellogg Co. v. Nugget Distributor's Cooperative of America Inc., 16 USPQ2d 1468 (TTAB) wherein the Board Held at 1469:

In determining whether a set of interrogatories exceeds this limit, each subdivision of separate questions, whether set forth as a numbered or lettered subpart, or as a compound question or a conjunctive question, is counted as a separate interrogatory.

Opposer further objects to the interrogatory to the extent they improperly request the production of documents."

- 14. There are approximately more than one thousand sailboats design marks registered at the USPTO. (See Exhibit 13.)
- Nautica presented numerous registered marks in the Opposition for different classes which are irrelevant to the issues in this case. Sailor only sells products under Class 25 and do not compete with Nautica in any other class.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED.

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF APPLICANT MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

TO THE HONORABLE USPTO:

COMES NOW Applicant, Majestique Corporation, by and through its counsel, and very respectfully avers and prays:

INTRODUCTION

This is a simple case that calls for the examiner to determine if Sailor and Nautica design marks are so similar as to cause a likelihood of confusion. It is Sailor optic that Nautica design mark is completely different, not similar and will not cause a likelihood of confusion. Nautica has delayed the proceedings by playing discovery games, requesting numerous continuances and by not responding in good faith to Sailor's discovery requests. The facts in the case are clear and it's time to dispose of this case without further consideration. Nautica's opposition is frivolous and without base. Nautica has failed to present any documentation to base its allegation of confusion or actual consumer confusion.

STANDARD TO DETERMINE IS THERE IS LIKEHOOD OF CONFUSION REGARDING DESIGN MARKS (THERE IS NO VISUAL SIMILARITY)

When the marks at issue are both design marks, the issue of similarity of the marks must be decided primarily on the basis of visual similarity. Likelihood of confusion is the test for trademark infringement both at common law and under the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C.A. Section 1114. The confusion spoken of is that of any significant number of buyers with respect to either the source of sponsorship of the product. The Opposer, Nautica, has the burden to prove that there is a real probability of likelihood of confusion. Nautica has not been able to produce any incident or document to sustain a real confusion by a purchaser. Nautica's Opposition is a groundless conclusion, without a base. Their averment that a product purchaser will confuse the source of sponsorship is preposterous. The brand names are so dissimilar that no one can confuse Nautica and Sailor brands. The design marks are also dissimilar and do not support the groundless conclusion of likelihood of confusion.

The Nautica design mark is used together with the word Nautica. It is impossible to confuse Nautica with Sailor marks and design mark.

NAUTICA PRODUCTS IN PUERTO RICO ARE ONLY SOLD AT NAUTICA STORES AND IN THE USA ONLY IN NAUTICA STORES AND MACYS

As it shows from Nautica's website, Nautica's products are sold in specialized Nautica's outlets where there are no Sailor's products present. It is impossible to confuse Nautica's products with Sailor's products. First, at no time are both products are sold at the same stores. In Nautica's outlets, only Nautica's products are sold. Second, Sailor's products are not sold on Nautica's outlets or Macys. Third, Nautica's products are not sold in the stores that Sailor sells its products. Third, both Nautica and Sailor brands and design marks are different in meaning, sound and appearance.

Opposer, Nautica Apparel, Inc., is the owner of the NAUTICA brand and design mark consisting of two triangles shapes described in the Notice of Opposition as "The mark is a drawing of two sails." (See Exhibit 9.) Both Nautica and its design trademarks are marketed together. Applicant, Majestique Corporation, is the owner of the SAILOR brand and design mark that resembles a sailboat consisting of a sailboat, with four sails and a boat hull. In Applicant's Application the description of the mark is "The mark consists of a 'Sailboat'" and Opposer design marks are clearly different in shape, meaning and form. No ordinary man may confuse the two symbols and Nautica and Sailor uses different channels of trade. There can be no possible confusion since both design marks and brand names are completely different.

NO SIMILARITY OF THE MARKS

NAUTICA and SAILOR trademarks and design marks are cumulatively different in sound, sight, meaning, package design, price and factors.

NO SIMILARITY IN MEANING

Similarity in meaning is another factor in determining whether there is a likelihood or confusion between marks. The focus is on the recollection of the average purchaser who normally retains an impression of trademarks. The word NAUTICA does not exist in the English language. The word is in the Italian Language and means in the English language navigation. The word SAILOR is a word in the English language and has a particular different meaning as "a person who works on a boat or ship as part of the crew or someone who controls a boat or ship that has sails". There can be no controversy that both words and design marks are different in meaning, sound, form an impression.

Although words from modern languages are generally translated into English, the doctrine of foreign equivalents is not an absolute rule but merely a guideline. The doctrine should be applied only when it is likely that the ordinary American purchaser would stop and translate the foreign world into its English equivalent. Also a Latin language is generally considered dead.

The meaning of the following words pursuant to the "Merriam Webster Dictionary are also different as follows:

- 1. "Nautica: The word you have entered isn't in the dictionary. Spelling suggestions nautical; Natick; Naugatuck; analytic; nautiloid." (See Exhibit 14.)
- 2. "Sailor: a person who works on a boat or ship as part of the crew; someone who controls a boat or ship that has sails." (See Exhibit 14.)

- 3. "sailboat: a boat that has a sail." (See Exhibit 14.)
- 4. "sail: a large of piece of strong cloth that is connected to a ship or boat and that is used to catch the winds that moves the ship or boat through the water; a trip in a ship or boat." (See Exhibit 14.)

As shown above, both name brands and design marks meanings are completely different in sound, meaning and form.

When the marks at issue are both design marks, the issue of the similarity of the marks must be decided primary on the basis of visual similarity. Red Carpet Corp. v. Johnstown American Enterprises, Inc. 7 USPQ2d 1404 (TTAB 1988).

A simple comparison between both design marks shows that the marks are not similar in sound, sight or meaning. Nautica design mark are two (2) sails and Sailor design mark is a sailboat with four (4) sails, different in shape and sailor design mark is a boat with four sails, and a hull. Where Applicant and Opposer do not use precisely identical marks, courts almost find that there is not likelihood of confusion.

APPLICANT - SAILOR

APPLICANT'S SPECIMEN

OPPOSER'S SPECIMEN

TEST FOR LIKEHOOD OF CONFUSION

One of the tests used to determine like hood of confusion is if applicant mark, as used on or in connection with the specified goods or services, so resembles a registered mark as to likely cause confusion. TMEP Section 1207.02

As shown above, both brand names and design marks are completely different in sound, meaning and form. There is no possibility that a reasonable prudent purchaser exercising ordinary caution can confuse both Nautica and Sailor brands or design marks. Both Nautica and Sailor products do not cause an overall impression to cause confusion about the source of the product. The word SAILOR is paramount in its products, packaging and label and the word Nautica is paramount in its product. We find that there is no chance for confusing both products and design marks.

A simple examination shows that both marks and designs do not show a likelihood or confusion, a false suggestion of a connection or dilution.

There are numerous office records that show that multiple design marks are recorded that uses sails, sailboats and catamaran shapes and styles. Also Nautica and Sailor design marks are significantly different in shape, appearance, sound, form and design. (See Exhibit 13.) The use of sailboats and sails designs are numerous and used in connection of many products. Applicant and Opposer design marks are clearly distinctive and not similar.

Nautica sails design mark is a minimalist sail design. Applicant's design mark resembles different kinds of sailboats and sails.

DIFFERENT CHANNELS OF MARKETING AND PRICE

Nautica's products are sold in Puerto Rico only in Nautica's specialized stores. Only Nautica's products are sold at Nautica's outlets. In the United States Nautica's products are sold at Nautica's outlets and Macys Stores. (See Exhibit 10.) Sailor's products are not sold at Nautica's Outlets or Macys Stores. It is impossible to confuse a prudent buyer when both products are not marketed at the same stores. Nautica's products target the expensive market and Applicant's products target the economic market.

Conversely there are not related or marketed in such a way that they would be encountered by the same persons in situations that would create the incorrect assumption that they originate from the same source. Confusion is not likely. See e.g. Shen Manufacturing Co. v. Ritz Hotel Ltd., 393 F3d 1238, 73 USPQ2d 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2004).

Nautica includes in their opposition numerous design marks registered for products that do not directly compete with Sailor's products. Sailor only sells clothing (Category 25). The inclusion of irrelevant products is made with the apparent intention to confuse. Also Nautica's products are high priced and sailor products are economical in price.

DESIGN MARKS NOT VISUALLY SIMILAR

When the marks at issue are both design marks, the issue of the similarity of the marks must be decided primary on the basis of visual similarity. In the case at bar both Nautica and Sailor design marks are distinctively different and not similar in any fashion.

The marks should be considered in their entireties. When Sailor's products are displayed the words "Sailor" are clearly stated in the product label and packaging. There is no chance for confusion since the word SAILOR is paramount in the product label and packaging. The design marks are completely different. (See Exhibit 6.) The words Nautica and Sailor are different in meaning, sound and impression. (See Exhibit 14.)

When the design marks are compared, Sailor (Sailboat) and Nautical (sails) it shows that graphically they are completely different. Sailor's sailboat design mark resembles a sailboat with a hull, and multiple sails, in the old Schooner type boat. (See Exhibit 12, types of sailboats). Nautica design mark resembles a Sloop type of sails and shows no hull and it is not a sailboat. Sailor's sailboat design resembles the type of sailboat used by Christopher Columbus, not the modern type of rig used in sloops or racing sailboats.

COMPOSITE MARKS CONSISTING IN WORDS AND DESIGNS

As it shows in both Nautica and Sailor, their labels and packaging consist of words and design elements. The fundamental rule in this situation is that marks must be considered in their entireties. See: Massey Junior College, Inc. v. Fashion Institute of Technology, 492 F2d 1399, 181 USPQ 272 (C.C.P.A. 1974). Nautiva vs Sailor words are not confusing in meaning, sound or form.

If a mark comprises both a word and a design, greater weight is given to the word, because it is the word that purchasers would use to refer to or request the goods and services. In Re.Appetito Provisions Co. Inc. 3USPQ2d 1553, 1554 (TTAB 1987).

SAILOR MARK IS PRESENT IN THE MARKET SINCE 2007

As it shows from the Puerto Rico, State Department the SAILOR brand has been recorded and used in commerce since 2007. (See Exhibit 7.) Nautica brand is alleged to be in the market since June, 2001.

FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED

It is pertinent to show that Nautica has not been able to show any evidence of actual confusion. Their averments are completely hypothetical and groundless. Also Nautica has no evidence to show any intention on applicant to cause any confusion. (Exhibit 2.) Applicant requested Opposer to produce all evidence in support of their allegation of likelihood of confusion. They failed to produce any document or evidence to support their contention. When compared side by side it is impossible to confuse both brands because they are conclusively different. Sailor packaging and label clearly states the word SAILOR which has no resemble to the Italian word Nautica. Even their meanings are different. (See Exhibit 14.)

NAUTICA REFUSED TO DISCLOSE ANY DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE TO SUSTAIN THEIR AVERMENTS

Applicant served Nautica a First Set of Request for Admissions, Interrogatories and Request for Documents (Exhibit 15). Nautica refuses to disclose and produce documents to sustain their averments. Nautica concedes that they don't have any evidence of confusion.

NAUTICA LITIGATION TACTICS

During this litigation, Nautica has requested numerous extensions of time and delayed discovery. Their tactic is to cause Applicant to incur in substantial attorneys fees and to cause delays. As it shows from the docket of this case, since 2013 Nautica has filed numerous Motions for continuance. They have caused the proceedings to be suspended by racing frivolous discovery matters. Nautica has failed to respond to Applicant's discovery and failed to produce many documents or information to base their allegations. (See Exhibit 15 and 2.) Nautica pretends to generate discovery controversies to further delay the resolution of the case. For more than two years they have stalled the case and this conduct is contrary to the spirit of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

OTHER COMPETITORS IN THE MARKET

During Applicant's investigation we found that there is a brand named Regatta, which uses design mark that resembles the type of boat that Nautica uses. (See Exhibit 16.) It is a fact that multiple sailboats and sails design marks is in use in the market. Nautica cannot claim to have a monopoly on all designs that resemble either a sailboat or a sail. The design marks of sailboats are used by thousands of products.

WHEREFORE it is respectfully requested that summary judgment be granted in favor of Applicant, and that the present Opposition be dismissed in its entirety.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED.

- 3. Opposer expressly reserves its right to rely, at any time including trial, upon subsequently discovered information or information omitted from the specific response set forth below as a result of mistake, oversight or inadvertences.

- 4. The specific responses set forth below are based upon Opposer's interpretation of the language used in the Requests and Opposer reserves its right to amend or to supplement its responses in the event Applicant asserts an interpretation that differs from Opposer's interpretation.
- 5. By making these responses, Opposer does not concede it is in possession of any information responsive to any particular Request or that any response given is relevant to this action.
- 6. Opposer's failure to object to a particular Request is not, and shall not be construed as, an admission of the relevance, or admissibility into evidence, of any such response or admission or information, nor does it constitute a representation that any such information in fact exists.
- 7. Because Opposer may not have discovered all the information that is possibly within the scope of the Request, Opposer expressly reserves its right to amend or to supplement these responses and Objections with any additional information that emerges through discovery or otherwise.
- 8. Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they require a response that is protected from disclosure by the attorney-client privilege, the attorney work product doctrine, the joint defense privilege or any other applicable privilege or immunities. Opposer responds to the Requests on the condition that the inadvertent response regarding information covered by such privilege, rule or doctrine does not waive any of Opposer's right to assert such privilege, rule or doctrine and the Opposer may withdraw any such response inadvertently made as soon as identified.
- 9. Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they seek proprietary, sensitive, or confidential commercial information or information made confidential by law or any agreement or that reflects trade secrets. Opposer responds to the Requests on the condition that the inadvertent responses regarding any proprietary, sensitive, or confidential information does not waive any of Opposer's rights and that Opposer may withdraw any such response inadvertently made as soon as identified.

- 10. Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they seek information that is not relevant to the subject matter of this action or reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.
- Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they exceed the requirements of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Federal Rules of Evidence, the applicable section of the Code of Federal Regulations ("CFR") and/or the Trademark Rules of Practice.
- 12. Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they require Opposer to undertake any investigation to ascertain information not presently within its possession, custody or control on the grounds of undue burden and because information from other sources are equally available to Applicant.
- 13. Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they require Opposer to undertake such an extensive review of information, persons, or documents and are unduly burdensome and that such requests are harassing.
- 14. Opposer objects to the Requests to the extent that they require Opposer to respond with information or documents for matters outside the United States.
- 15. Opposer objects to the instructions propounded by Applicant to the extent that they differ from what is required under the FRCP, FRE, CFR, TBMP and the trademark rules of practice.
- 16. Opposer's only obligation pursuant to Rule 2.120(d) of the Trademark Rules of Practice and Rule 34(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is to produce documents where they are normally kept during the normal course of business. For the most part, those documents are kept at its offices in New York, New York and may be inspected and copied where kept upon proper notice at a mutually convenient date and time.

REQUESTS FOR ADMISSIONS

1. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Delaware.

Response: Admitted

Response: Opposer objects to the Request as being compound in nature. Opposer objects to the Request on the basis that the request is irrelevant, immaterial, not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, and beyond the scope of discovery in these proceedings. Without waiver of the foregoing objections, Opposer admits that Opposer is organized under the laws of the State of Delaware. Opposer admits that Opposer is not authorized to do business in Puerto Rico. Opposer is a holding company for the trademarks owned by Opposer and does not transact business, except to the extent that it licenses and otherwise authorizes the use of its trademarks, including use of Opposer's marks in Puerto Rico.

3. Admit that Majestique Corporation is a corporation organized under the Laws of Puerto Rico and is authorized to do business in Puerto Rico.

Response: Opposer objects to the Request on the basis that the information requested by this request is uniquely within the knowledge of Applicant. Opposer admits only that Applicant claims to be a corporation registered in Puerto Rico in connection with its trademark application. Otherwise, Opposer lacks knowledge or information sufficient to respond to the request.

4. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. is part of VF Corporation and VF Corporation is not authorized to do business in Puerto Rico.

Response: Opposer objects to the Request on the basis that VF Corporation and its business activities are not at issue in this proceeding. Opposer further objects to the request as being vague, ambiguous and unintelligible insofar as the term "is part of" is concerned. Please clarify what is meant. Until receiving clarification, Opposer lacks knowledge or information sufficient to respond to that portion of the request. Opposer admits that VF Corporation is not authorized to do business in Puerto Rico.

5. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. does not own any retail stores in Puerto Rico.

Response: Opposer objects to the request as being vague and ambiguous insofar as the term "owns" is concerned. There are Nautica outlet stores in Puerto Rico and to that extent, the request is denied. To the extent the request asks if Opposer owns the physical stores, the request is admitted.

6. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. does not file Income Tax Returns in Puerto Rico.

Response: Opposer objects to the Request on the basis that the request is irrelevant, immaterial, unduly burdensome, not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, and beyond the scope of discovery in these proceedings. The request is also harassing in nature.

7. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. has no commercial relationships with Majestique Corporation.

Response: Admitted.

8. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. sailing symbol is not recorded at the Puerto Rico State Department.

Response: Opposer objects to the Request on the basis that the request is irrelevant, immaterial, not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, and beyond the scope of discovery in these proceedings. Without waiver of the foregoing objections, the Request is admitted. Opposer's mark is registered with the United States Patent and Trademark Office which encompasses the territory of Puerto Rico.

9. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. does not have any documental evidence to sustain that Applicant and Opposer's marks are identical or substantially similar.

Response: Opposer admits that it does not have documental evidence that the parties' respective marks are exactly "identical." Otherwise, the request is denied.

10. Admit that Nautica Apparel, Inc. does not have any documental evidence to sustain that Applicant and Opposer's marks are confusingly similar.

Response: Denied.

11. Admit that Nautical Apparel, Inc. averment that confusion, mistake and deception will occur if Applicant's mark is recorded is speculative.

Response: Opposer objects to the request as being vague and ambiguous insofar as the term "is recorded" is concerned. To the extent the Request refers to trademark registration in the USPTO, the Request is denied.

12. Admit that the Nautica Apparel, Inc. mark and sailing symbol is spinnaker logo and not a sailboat.

Response: Denied.

13. Admit that a spinnaker logo is a type of sail and not a sailboat.

Response: Opposer objects to the request on the basis that the parties' respective marks, spinnaker logos in general and sailboat logos in general are all subject to interpretation by the viewer of the mark. Further, Opposer has not conducted any research on consumer impression of spinnaker logos in general or of the general public's understanding of what a "spinnaker" or "spinnaker logo" is. Accordingly, the Request is denied. Opposer asserts that its marks consist of sails whose base can be interpreted as a sailboat.

14. Admit that Applicant's logo is a sailboat.

Response: Opposer objects to the request on the basis that Applicant's mark is a design mark which is subject to interpretation by the viewer of the mark. Opposer denies that Applicant's mark is merely or necessarily "a sailboat."

INTERROGATORIES

Opposer, Nautica Apparel, Inc., objects to Applicant's First Set of Interrogatories on the basis that the same violates 37 CFR Section 2.120(d) as the actual number of interrogatories with subparts exceeds the 75 interrogatory limit. See, Kellogg Co. v. Nugget Distributors' Cooperative of America Inc., 16 USPQ2d 1468 (TTAB) wherein the Board Held at 1469:

In determining whether a set of interrogatories exceeds this limit, each subdivision of separate questions, whether set forth as a numbered or lettered subpart, or as a compound question or a conjunctive question, is counted as a separate interrogatory.

Opposer further objects to the interrogatories to the extent they improperly request the production of documents.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS

Opposer objects to the preamble paragraph of the Applicant's REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS to the extent it is a document request in disguise. Such request is improperly formatted and it is also overbroad, improper, and non-specific as regards Rule 34(b)(1)(A) F.R.Civ. P., which requires that a request "must describe with reasonable particularity each item or category of items to be inspected.

DOCUMENT REQUESTS

1. Any or all documents, correspondence, recorded data, electronic transmissions or communications generated or exchanged between Opposer and VF Corporation during the term of the commercial relationship.

Response: Opposer objects to the request as being absurdly overbroad, unduly burdensome to comply with, improper, and non-specific as regards Rule 34(b)(1)(A) F.R.Civ. P. See, e.g., Time Warner Entertainment Co. v. Jones, 65 USPQ2d 1650, 1657 (TTAB 2002) (interrogatory requesting that opposer "identify each and every fact, document and witness in support of its pleaded allegations" was improper); cf. IBP, Inc. V. Mercantile Bank, 179 F.R.D. 316, 321 (D. Kan. 1998) (requests overbroad in that they seek "all facts")." See also, Southwestern Mgmt., Inc. v. Ocinomled, Ltd., 115 USPQ2d 1007 (TTAB 2015). Opposer further objects to this document request on the basis that it is harassing in nature. The request is also objected to as being temporally and geographically unlimited or unrestricted in any way, and on that basis is also overly broad and unduly burdensome.

2. Any or all documents, correspondence, recorded data, electronic transmissions or communications generated or exchanged between Opposer and VF Corporation during the term of the commercial relationship, specifically regarding the marketing of the Nautica products.

Response: Opposer objects to the Request on the basis that it is vague and ambiguous as regards the term "marketing." Please clarify what is meant. Opposer objects to this document request on the basis that insofar as it requests "any and all" it is overly broad, unduly burdensome and harassing in nature. The request is also objected to as being temporally and geographically unlimited or unrestricted in any way, and on that basis is also overly broad and unduly burdensome. Upon receiving clarification of what Applicant means by "marketing," Opposer will further respond.

3. Any or all documents, correspondence, recorded data, electronic transmissions or communications referring or relating to licenses or authorizations granted by the Puerto Rico State Department to Nautica Apparel, Inc. to do business in Puerto Rico.

Response: Opposer objects to the request as being irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this proceeding and not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiver of the foregoing objections, Opposer has no documents responsive to the Request.

4. Provide all evidence that Nautica Apparel, Inc. is an affiliated or related entity of VF Corporation and provide all licenses agreements between the parties.

Response: Opposer objects to the interrogatory on the basis that it is overly broad, unduly burdensome, and not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Opposer further objects to the request as being vague and ambiguous insofar as the term "affiliated or related entity" is concerned. Please clarify what is meant. Subject to and without waiver of the foregoing objections, Opposer will provide evidence sufficient to show the legal relationship between VF Corporation and Nautica Apparel, Inc. If Applicant believes that the same is insufficient, please state how and why. The request for "all license agreements between the parties" is objected to as it lacks specificity as required by Rule 34(b)(1)(A) F.R.Civ.P. Please appropriately narrow your request to areas that are the subject of this proceeding.

5. Certificate of Incorporation of Nautica Apparel, Inc., VF Corporation and Certificate of Authorization to do business in Puerto Rico.

Response: Opposer objects to the interrogatory on the basis that as regards VF Corporation and Certificate of Authorization to do business in Puerto Rico it seeks documents that are irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this proceeding, and the request is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiver of the foregoing objections, Opposer will provide copies of the certificates of incorporation for Nautica Apparel, Inc. and VF Corporation.

6. Provide copy of all documentary evidence that sustain each and every allegation in the Notice of Opposition duly identified from the First averment to the twenty sixth. Please state as to each averment the name of each of the witnesses that Opposer will present or intends to present at trial.

Response: Opposer objects to the request as being absurdly overbroad, unduly burdensome to comply with, improper, and non-specific as regards Rule 34(b)(1)(A) F.R.Civ. P. See, e.g., Time Warner Entertainment Co. v. Jones, 65 USPQ2d 1650, 1657 (TTAB 2002) (interrogatory requesting that opposer "identify each and every fact, document and witness in support of its pleaded allegations" was improper); cf. IBP, Inc. V. Mercantile Bank, 179 F.R.D. 316, 321 (D. Kan. 1998) (requests overbroad in that they seek "all facts")." See also, Southwestern Mgmt., Inc. v. Ocinomled, Ltd., 115 USPQ2d 1007 (TTAB 2015).

7. Please provide the name, address and curriculum vitae of all expert witness that Opposer has contacted and that could be a potential expert witness at trial.

Response: Opposer objects to this request as being premature. Expert disclosures will be made in accordance with the TTAB Scheduling Order.

I, Margaret Bizzari, Director of Intellectual Property and Product Liability, for Nautica Apparel, Inc., have reviewed the responses to the Interrogatories set forth above and state that pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, and under the penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

- 7. Opposer is now and has been for many years trading as and known by Opposer's Marks, identifying Opposer as the source of high quality apparel, fragrance products, watches, accessories and other goods and services.
- 8. Applicant's Goods are identical or substantially similar to Opposer's Goods and Services.
- 9. Opposer is now and has been, for many years prior to any date which may be claimed by Applicant, engaged in the use of Opposer's Marks for Opposer's Goods and Services.

- 10. Opposer is now and has been, for many years prior to any date which may be claimed by Applicant, engaged in the sale of high quality apparel, fragrance products, watches, accessories and other goods and services under Opposer's Marks.
- 11. Since long prior to any date which may be claimed by Applicant, Opposer on its own behalf has been, and is now engaged in the sale of high quality apparel, fragrance products, watches, accessories and other goods and services under Opposer's Marks in interstate commerce.
- 12. The use by Opposer of Opposer's Marks for Opposer's Goods and Services alleged herein, is long prior to any date which may be lawfully claimed by Applicant, and Opposer has priority.
- 13. Applicant intends to distribute and/or to provide Applicant's Goods through the same channels of trade as Opposer and as a result, Applicant is now, or will be, directing its respective goods and services to the same ultimate consumer as Opposer.
- 14. Opposer's Marks and Applicant's Mark are confusingly similar when applied to the goods of the parties.
- 15. The goods and services of Applicant and Opposer are identical or substantially similar to Opposer's or within Opposer's ever expanding natural progression of goods and services and channels of trade and Applicant's intended use of Applicant's Mark in connection with such goods and services is without the consent or permission of Opposer.
- 16. Since Opposer owns Opposer's Marks by virtue of prior use, confusion, mistake or deception as to the source of origin of the goods will arise and will injure and damage the Opposer and its goodwill.

- 17. As a result of Opposer's long use, extensive advertising and promotion, and successful sales, Opposer's Marks have become distinctive and famous, long prior to any date which may be claimed by Applicant.
- 18. The registration of Applicant's Mark to Applicant will cause the relevant purchasing public to erroneously assume and thus be confused, misled, or deceived, that Applicant's Goods are made by, licensed by, controlled by, sponsored by, or in some way connected, related or associated with Opposer, in violation of Section 2(d) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1052(d), all to Opposer's irreparable damage.
- 19. The association which would arise from the similarity between Applicant's Mark and Opposer's famous Marks will harm the reputation of Opposer and Opposer's famous Marks thereby resulting in dilution by tarnishment in violation of Section 43(c) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. §1125(c). There is an overwhelming likelihood that this association will impugn Opposer's Goods and Services and injure its business reputation.
- 20. The association which would arise from the similarity between Applicant's Mark and Opposer's famous Marks will impair the distinctiveness of Opposer's famous Marks and thereby result in dilution by blurring in violation of Section 43(c) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. §1125(c). There is an overwhelming likelihood that this association will impugn Opposer's Goods and Services and injure its business reputation.
- 21. Applicant's Mark falsely suggests a connection with Opposer, and/or will bring Opposer into contempt or disrepute, in violation of §2(a) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. §1052(a), all to Opposer's irreparable damage.

22. Applicant's use of Applicant's Mark points uniquely and unmistakably to Opposer.

Mark as pointing uniquely and unmistakably to Opposer.

24. Issuance of registration for Applicant's Mark to Applicant would create a false and misleading connection to Opposer all to the irreparable damage of consumers and Opposer.

cloud on Opposer's rights to use Opposer's Marks for Opposer's Goods and Services.

WHEREFORE, Opposer prays that the application for registration of Applicant's

Mark, Serial No. 85883577 be denied and that this Opposition be sustained.

Schooner

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

A schooner / sku:nər/ is a type of sailing vessel with fore-and-aft sails on two or more masts, the foremast being shorter than the main and no taller than the mizzen if there is one. Originally gaff-rigged, modern schooners typically carry a Bermuda rig.

Such vessels were first used by the Dutch in the 16th or 17th century. They were further developed in North America from the early 18th century, and came into extensive use in New England.^[1] The most common type, with two masts, were popular in trades requiring speed and windward ability, such as slaving, privateering, blockade running, and offshore fishing.^[2] In the Chesapeake Bay area several distinctive schooner types evolved, including the Baltimore clipper, bugeye, and pungy. Schooners were also popular among pirates in the West Indies during The Golden Age of Piracy, for their speed and agility. They could also sail in shallow waters, and while being considerably smaller than other ships of the time period (such as frigates and galleons), they could still hold enough cannons to intimidate merchant vessels into submission.

Schooners were popular on both sides of the Atlantic in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, long dominating yacht races such as the America's Cup, but gradually gave way in Europe to the cutter.^[3]

History

Schooners first evolved in the late 17th century from a variety of small two-masted gaff-rigged vessels used in the coast and estuaries of the Netherlands. Most were working craft but some pleasure yachts with schooner rigs were built for wealthy merchants and Dutch nobility. Following the arrival of the Dutch monarch William of Orange on the British throne, the British Royal Navy built a Royal yacht with a schooner rig in 1695, HMS Royal Transport. This vessel, captured in a detailed Admiralty model, is the earliest fully documented schooner.^[4] Royal Transport was quickly noted for its speed and ease of handling, and mercantile vessels soon adopted the rig in Europe and in European colonies in North America. Schooners were immediately popular with colonial traders and fishermen in North America with the first documented reference to a schooner in the United States appearing in Boston port records in 1716.^[5] North American shipbuilders quickly developed a variety of schooner forms for trading, fishing and privateering.

Etymology

A popular legend holds that the first schooner was built by builder Andrew Robinson and launched in Gloucester, Massachusetts where a spectator exclaimed "Oh how she scoons", scoon being similar to scone,^[6] a Scots word meaning to skip along the surface of the water.^{[7][8]} Robinson replied, "A schooner let her be."^[9] The launch is variously described as being in 1713 or 1745.^[10] Naval architects such as Howard Chapelle have dismissed this invention story as a "childish fable",^[11] but some language scholars feel that the legend may support the American origin of the word, if not the invention of the vessel.^[12]

According to the language scholar Walter William Skeat, the term schooner comes from scoon, while the sch spelling comes from the later adoption of the Dutch spelling ("schoener"). Another study suggests that a Dutch expression praising ornate schooner yachts in the 17th century, "een schoone Schip", may have led to the term "schooner" being used by English speakers to describe the early versions of the schooner rig as it evolved in England and America.^[10]

Other sources state the etymology as unknown^[13] and uncertain.^[14]

The first detailed definition of a schooner, describing the vessel as two-masted vessel with fore and aft gaff-rigged sails appeared in 1769 in William Falconer's, Universal Dictionary of the Marine.^[15]

Schooner sail plan

Although a schooner may have up to seven masts, the typical schooner has only two, with the foremast shorter than the mainmast. There may be a bowsprit to help balance the rig. The principal issue with a schooner sail plan is how to fill the space between the two masts most effectively. Traditional schooners were gaff rigged, and the trapezoid shape of the foresail occupied the inter-mast space to good effect, with a useful sail area and a low centre of effort.

A Bermuda rigged schooner typically has four triangular sails: a mainsail, a main staysail abaft the foremast, plus a forestaysail and a jib (or genoa) forward of the foremast. An advantage of the staysail schooner is that it is easily handled and reefed by a small crew, as both staysails can be self-tacking. The main staysail will not overlap the mainsail, and so does little to prepare the wind for the mainsail, but is effective when close-hauled or when on a beam reach. Although the main staysail has less area than an equivalent gaff sail, a loosefooted "fisherman" may be flown above the main staysail to maximise drive in light airs. The fisherman's staysail, a four-sided fore-and-aft sail, is not strictly a staysail, but is clewed abaft the foremast. An alternatively light-air sail is a triangular mule.

Some Bermuda schooners have (instead of a main staysail) a rectangular boomed sail clewed to the foremast; but although it can be self-tacking, it will be smaller in area than a main staysail and its use complicates flying a fisherman.

Multi-masted schooner sailplan

Multi-masted staysail schooners usually carried a mule above each staysail except the fore staysail. Gaff-rigged schooners generally carry a triangular fore-and-aft topsail above the gaff sail on the main topmast and sometimes also on the fore topmast (see illustration), called a gaff-topsail schooner. A gaff-rigged schooner that is not set up to carry one or more gaff topsails is sometimes termed a "bare-headed" or "bald-headed" schooner. A gaff schooner may carry a square topsail atop the foremast. A schooner with no bowsprit is known as a "knockabout" schooner. A "cat-rigged" schooner not only has no bowsprit but has no headsails, and has the foremast set as far forward as possible.^[16]

Schooner rationale

Sailing vessels with a single mast will typically be sloops or cutters, either with a Bermuda or gaff mainsail. There is little economic justification for the cost and complexity of a second mast unless the vessel is reasonably large, (say) above 50 feet (15 m) LOA.

If a vessel's size requires a second mast, the sail plan will usually be a schooner, ketch or yawl, all of which are fore-and-aft rigged, although the "topsail schooner" variant carries one or more square topsails on its foremast. The two-topsail schooner variant carries square topsails on both the mainmast and the foremast. The schooner may be distinguished from both the yawl and the ketch by the disposition of its masts, and thus the placement of the mainsail. On the yawl and ketch, the mainsail is flown from the forward mast, or mainmast, and the aft mast is the mizzen-mast. A two-masted schooner has the mainsail on the aft mast, and its other mast is the foremast. Compared to a single-masted vessel, all the two-masted vessels can have a lower centre of pressure in the sail plan.

Although the ketch (and to a much lesser extent, the yawl) is more popular than the schooner in Europe, the schooner is arguably more efficient. The schooner can carry a larger sail area, because of its much larger mainsail and the effective sail(s) between the masts. Also, in a schooner, all the sails work together in a complementary fashion, optimising airflow and drive. By contrast, on a ketch, or especially a yawl, the mizzen sail provides proportionately less power, being smaller than, and frequently blanketed by, the mainsail. The ketch however offers advantages in sail handling in poor weather.

Multi-masted schooners

While schooners were initially defined as having two masts, three-masted schooners were first introduced around 1800.^[17] In the late 19th century, additional masts were added as schooners were built with as many as six masts (e.g. the wooden six-masted Wyoming) or seven masts to carry a larger volume of cargo. The only seven-masted (steel hulled) schooner, the Thomas W. Lawson, was built in 1902, with a length of 395 ft (120 m), the top of the tallest mast being 155 feet (47 m) above deck, and carrying 25 sails with 43,000 sq ft (4,000 m²) of total sail area. It was manned by a crew of only sixteen. A two or three masted schooner is quite maneuverable and can be sailed by a smaller crew than some other sailing vessels. The larger multi-masted schooners were largely a cost-cutting measure introduced towards the end of the days of sail.

Construction

Essex, Massachusetts was the most significant shipbuilding center for schooners. By the 1850s, over 50 vessels a year were being launched from 15 shipyards and Essex became recognized worldwide as North America's center for fishing schooner construction. In total, Essex launched over 4,000 schooners, most headed for the Gloucester, Massachusetts fishing industry. [18] Bath, Maine was another notable center, which during much of the 19th century had more than a dozen yards working at a time, and from 1781 to 1892 launched 1352 schooners, [19] including the Wyoming.

Operation

Schooners were used to carry cargo in many different environments, from ocean voyages to coastal runs and on large inland bodies of water. They were popular in North America. In their heyday, during the late 19th century more than 2,000 schooners carried on the Great Lakes. Three-masted "terns" were a favourite rig of Canada's Maritime Provinces. The scow schooner, which used a schooner rig on a flat-bottomed, blunt-ended scow hull, was popular in North America for coastal and river transport.

Schooners were used in North American fishing, especially the Grand Banks fishery. Some Banks fishing schooners such as Bluenose also became famous racers.

Two of the most famous racing yachts, America and Atlantic, were rigged as schooners. They were about 152 feet (46 m) in length.

Sloop

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

A sloop (from Dutch sloep, in turn from French chaloupe) is a sailing boat with a single mast and a fore-and-aft rig. A sloop has only one head-sail: if a vessel has two or more head-sails, the term 'cutter' is used, and its mast may be set further aft than on a sloop. In contrast, in the US a sloop may have one, two or three head-sails forward of the mast—the term cutter not generally being used for sailboats.

The most common rig of modern sailboats is the Bermuda-rigged sloop. Typically, a modern sloop carries a mainsail on a boom aft of the mast, with a single loose-footed head-sail (a jib or a genoa jib) forward of the mast.

Sloops are either masthead-rigged or fractional-rigged. On a masthead-rigged sloop, the forestay (on which the headsail is carried) attaches at the top of the mast. The mainsail may be smaller than the headsail, which is then called a genoa jib. On a fractional-rigged sloop, the forestay attaches to the mast at a point below the top, typically 3/4 of the way to top, or perhaps 7/8 or some other fraction. The mast of a fractional-rigged sloop may be placed farther forward; compared to a masthead-rigged sloop, this results in a rather smaller jib relative to the size of the mainsail.

Rationale behind the sloop rig

After the cat rig, which has only a mainsail, the sloop rig is one of the simpler sailing rig configurations. A sloop typically has two sails, a mainsail and a jib, while the cutter has a mainsail and two foresails. Next in complexity are the ketch, the yawl, and the schooner, each of which has two masts and a minimum of three sails. A sloop has a simple system of mast stays—a forestay, backstay (fore and aft), and shrouds (side to side).

By having only two sails, the individual sails of a sloop are larger than those of an equivalent cutter, yawl or ketch. Until the advent of lightweight sailcloth and modern sail-handling systems, the larger sails of a sloop could be a handful. So, until the 1950s, sailboats over 10 metres LOA would typically use a cutter rig or a two-mast rig. After the advent of modern winches and light sailcloth, the sloop became the dominant sailing rig type for all but the largest sailboats.

No rig type is perfect for all conditions. Sloops, with their paucity of spars and control lines tend to impart less aerodynamic drag. Compared to other rigs, sloops tend to perform very well when sailing close hauled to windward, and sloops offer a sound overall compromise of abilities on all points of sail. Cutters and ketches and yawls are often still preferred to sloops when venturing far offshore, because it is easier to reef small sails, as the wind increases, while still keeping the boat balanced.

Sails carried

To maximize the amount of sail carried, the classic sloop may use a bowsprit, which is essentially a spar that projects forward from the bow of the boat. For downwind sailing, the typical foresail may be replaced (or sometimes supplemented) by larger curved sails known as spinnakers or gennakers. The typical foresail, known as the jib, which does not overlap the mast more than 10 to 20 percent, may be replaced by a genoa, which overlaps the mast by some 55 to 100 percent, for racing rules, and sometimes even more. The genoa's large overlap behind the mainsail helps to guide the airflow and thereby makes the mainsail more effective.

The Bermuda sloop

The modern yachting sloop is known as the Bermuda sloop, due to its Bermuda rig (also known as the Marconi rig, due to its resemblance to the wireless towers of Guglielmo Marconi), which is the optimal rig for upwind sailing; consequently sloops are popular with sport sailors and yachtsmen, and for racing. The rig is simple in its basic form, yet when tuned properly, it is maneuverable and fast. The main disadvantage is the relatively large size of the sails, especially on larger vessels. It is also less successful sailing downwind; the addition of a spinnaker is necessary for faster downwind speed in all but the strongest winds, and the spinnaker is an intrinsically unstable sail requiring continuous trimming. When sailing downwind, a stable but slower configuration called "wing on wing" in which the main is swung wide, usually to lee while the jib is swung wide to windward will suffice except in racing conditions. However this configuration tends to dip the bow due to leverage applied lower on a jib than on a spinnaker, requiring crew to move aft to counterbalance the dip. The combined forces make the boat ride lower thus being slower due to more hull in contact with water. Also the wing on wing configuration cannot be heeled over to reduce waterline whereas the spinnaker configuration can be. If not tended carefully, the main can go slack even to the point of being dangerously close to jibing. The jib will have that same tendency and being to windward, will snap sharply a-lee but with no boom and being forward of the mast will make for a far less dangerous move than that of the main. A slack main when to leeward can be brought back under control by hauling on the mainsheet to bring it back in contact with the wind when on the aft quarter to windward but if the wind suddenly comes around onto the aft quarter of what formerly was to lee, the boat must be brought further a-lee (toward what was formerly windward) to keep the wind strong on the main.

The Bermuda sloop is a type of fore-and-aft rigged sailing vessel developed on the island of Bermuda in the 17th century. In this sense, the term is applied to small ships, rather than boats. In its purest form, it is single-masted, although ships with such rigging were built with as many as three masts. Its original form had gaff rig, but evolved to use what is now known as Bermuda rig, making it the basis of nearly all modern sailing yachts. Although the Bermuda sloop is often described as a development of the narrower-beamed Jamaica sloop, which dates from the 1670s, the high, raked masts and triangular sails of its Bermuda rig are rooted in a tradition of Bermudian boat design dating from the early 17th century. Part of that tradition included long, horizontal bowsprits and large jibs. Three jibs were commonly used on Bermudian ships. Triangular sails appeared on Bermudian boats early in the 17th century, a development of the Dutch bezaan, or leg-of-mutton rig, 1883 description of the racing of Bermudian sloops, by Lady Brassey, with illustrations showing the Bermuda rig. The working sloops that were used for weekend races were effectively smaller versions of the ocean-going Bermuda sloop.

itself derived from the Lateen rig. This became the Bermuda rig, and was appearing on Bermudian ships by the early 19th century. A large spinnaker was carried on a spinnaker boom, when running down-wind.

Jamaican sloop

Jamaican sloops were slightly different from Bermuda sloops, the most obvious difference being that these ships were built on the shores of Jamaica. Their beams were narrower than ocean-going Bermuda sloops, and they carried gaff rig, where Bermuda sloops might carry gaff or Bermuda rig. The keel of Jamaican sloops would usually be between 50–75 feet, but could be built longer. They usually had a speed of around 12 knots, which is equivalent to about 13.8 mph.^[1] The sloops were built near the shore and usually out of cedar trees, for much the same reasons that Bermudian shipwrights favoured the Bermuda cedar (which is actually a juniper): these were very resistant to rot, grew very fast and tall, and had a taste displeasing to animals.^[2] One of the reasons Jamaican sloops were built out of cedar, and not oak, was that oak which would normally be used would rot in about 10 years, while cedar would last for close to 30 years. Another advantage of cedar was that it was considerably lighter than oak.^[2] The lighter weight made the ships of cedar faster and more able to maneuver quickly.

Since piracy was a significant threat in Caribbean waters, merchants sought ships that could outrun pursuers. Ironically, that same speed and maneuverability made them highly prized and even more targeted by the pirates they were designed to avoid.

When the ship had to be careened, pirates needed a safe haven on which to ground the ship. Sloops were well suited for this because they were able to sail in shallow areas where larger ships would either run aground or be unable to sail through at all. These shallow waters also provided protection from ships of the Royal Navy, which tended to be larger and required deep water to sail safely.^[2]

Historic naval definition

The naval term "sloop" referred to ships with different rigs and sizes varying from navy to navy. "Sloop-of-war" was more of a reference to the purpose of the craft, rather than to the specific size or sailplan. (Further confusion was caused by the practice of redesignating a vessel simply according to the rank of the commanding officer.) The Royal Navy began buying Bermuda sloops, beginning with an order for three sloops-of-war (HMS Dasher, HMS Driver, and HMS Hunter, which were each of 200 tons, armed with twelve 24 pounders) placed with Bermudian builders in 1795. They were intended to counter the menace of French privateers, which the Navy's ships-of-the-line were ill-designed to counter.

A three-masted Bermuda sloop of the Royal Navy, ca. 1831. Also called Ballyhou schooners, the Royal Navy referred to these as sloops-of-war.

Eventually, Bermuda sloops became the standard advice vessels of the navy, used for communications, reconnoitering, anti-slaving, anti-smuggling, and other roles to which they were well suited. The most notable examples of these were HMS Pickle, which raced back to England with news of the British victory and the death of Admiral Lord Nelson at the end of the Battle of Trafalgar, and HMS Whiting (79 tons and four guns), which lowered anchor in the harbor of Hampton Roads on 8 July 1812, carrying dispatches. The American privateer Dash, which happened to be leaving port, seized the vessel. The crew of Whiting had not yet received news of the American declaration of war, and her capture was the first naval action of the American War of 1812.

Generally, a sloop was smaller than a frigate; however, in the later days of the U.S. Navy's sailing fleet, some of the largest vessels were called sloops because they carried fewer guns than a frigate, as few as 20. The classification of sloop was similar to that of a corvette.

Modern naval definition

HMS Wisteria, an Arabis-class sloop of the Royal Navy, built in 1915 (IWM SP 827)

In modern usage, a sloop refers to a warship between a corvette and a frigate in size. Such vessels were common during the age of steam, but ships of this type were becoming obsolete by the Second World War. The Royal Navy used sloops, such as those of the Flower class (divided into five sub-classes: Acacia, Azalea, Arabis, Aubretia and Anchusa), in numerous roles, including escort duty and anti-submarine warfare, during World War I. The same was true during the Second World War, when the Royal Navy used the Black Swan class. During World War II, Royal Navy sloops destroyed five German submarines.

USS Freedom on sea trials in February 2013 before her first deployment

The new Littoral combat ship (LCS) type of the United States Navy, being intermediate between a frigate and a corvette, is roughly equivalent to a sloop. The US Navy intends these for operations in the littoral zone (close to shore).^[3] The type is "envisioned to be a networked, agile, stealthy surface combatant capable of defeating anti-access and asymmetric threats in the littorals." The Freedom class and the Independence class are the first two variants of LCS, and are slightly smaller than the US Navy's guided missile frigates.

Modern civilian connotation

Sloops in their modern form were developed by the French Navy as blockade runners to circumvent Royal Navy blockades. They were later adapted to pilot boats (small ships that took a pilot out to a ship, to guide it into a harbor). Later still, they were adapted to smaller revenue cutters.

The first modern sloops were fitted with the Bermuda rig, so called as a result of its development in Bermuda, during the 17th century. This rig is also called the Marconi rig because of the resemblance of its tall mast and complex standing rigging to Guglielmo Marconi's wireless (radio) transmission antennas.

A 20th Century IOD sloop and a 19th Century Bermudian working sloop.

From 1992 to 2007 IACC sloops sailed in the America's Cup competition. The current Volvo Ocean Race is using a new class, the Volvo 70, which boasts a canting keel, carbon construction throughout, and very powerful sailplans. The 24-hour distance record was recently broken several times, with ABN AMRO 2 setting the record distance of 563 nautical miles (1,043 km) for a monohull (January 2006). These boats routinely sail at or above wind speeds and can sustain mid-20-knot (37 km/h) speeds hour after hour.

The largest yachting sloop built to date is Mirabella V, with a carbon-fiber mast that is 289 feet (90 m) high.
